

The Tatar charities during the first world war

Buravleva V., Minnullin Z.

Kazan Federal University, 420008, Kremlevskaya 18, Kazan, Russia

Abstract

© Serials Publications. The relevance of the investigated problem is caused by the need of examination and usage the experience of pre-revolutionary activities of various social organizations, including charities. The purpose of the article is to review the formation and activities of the Tatar charities during the First World War. The main methods of the study were source analysis of sources, systematization and generalization of factual material, a contrastive-comparative method. The study of archival materials not only expanded the understanding of the relation of the Tatar society in the war but also allowed to show the activities of the Interim Committee of the Muslim, revealing the contradictory nature of the interactions between the government and the Tatar charitable organizations during the First World War. Article Submissions may be useful in the study of the course "History", "History of Charity in Russia", the history of the Tatar people.

Keywords

Charity, Muslim Interim Committee, Tatar charities, The First World War

References

- [1] Anthology of Social Work. In 5 volumes. Vol. 1. (1994). The history of social assistance in Russia / Ed. M. A. Firsov. M. : Svarog-NVF SPT. Assembly of Muslim education Muslim hospital for the wounded. (1914). Din waadab, 16: 503-507.
- [2] Astashov A. B. (1992). Unions of Zemstvos and cities and help the wounded in the First World War. National history, 6: 169-172.
- [3] Azamatov, D. D. (2000). From the history of the Muslim charity. Endowments in the European part of Russia and Siberia in the late XIX-early XX century. Ufa, Bashkir State University Publishing house.
- [4] Caspian. (1915, September 19). Dagestani D. In the Interim Muslim Committee. Central State Historical Archive of St. Petersburg. Fund. 569. Inventory. 13. Case. 1182 b.
- [5] Grishin, Y. Y. (1995). Polish-Lithuanian Tatars (descendants of the Golden Horde). Popular science essays. Kazan: Tatar publishing house.
- [6] Ivanov, A. E. (2004). Student Russian Corporation of the late XIX-early XX century: the experience of the cultural and political self-organization. Moscow: The new chronograph.
- [7] Lindenmeyr, A. (1996). Poverty Is Not a Vice: Charity, Society and the State in Imperial Russia. Princeton: University Press.
- [8] Madison, B. Q. (1968). Social Welfare in the Soviet Union. Stanford: University Press. Mercy has ancient roots. (Charity and mercy in Kazan during the First World War. 1914-1917). Collection of documents and materials. (2003). Kazan: Gasyr.
- [9] Miliukov, I. (2006). The activities of charitable organizations in Kazan (60 years of the XIX century-the beginning of the XX century). Kazan, 200 p. (PhD thesis).

- [10] Ransel, D. L. (1988). Mothers of Misery. Child Abandonment in Russia. Princeton: University Press. Regulations on the Interim Muslim Committee to assist soldiers and their families. Pg. 1915. Russian State Historical Archives. Fund. 1288. Inventory. 15 (internal inventory 18). Case 115. Russian State Historical Archives. Fund. 821. Inventory. 133. Case.
- [11] Salikhov, P. P. (2004). The participation of Russian business in the Tatar public and political processes of the second half of XIX-early XX century. Kazan: "Fan" the publishing house of the RT Academy of Science.
- [12] Sanitary Service of the Russian army in the war of 1914-1917: A Collection of Documents. (1942). Kuybyshev: Publishing house of the Military Medical Academy of the Red Army.
- [13] Shchapov, Y. N. (1994). Charity in pre-revolutionary Russia: national experience and contribution to civilization. Russia in the XX century. The world historians argue. Moscow: Nauka.
- [14] Sokolov, A. R. (2006). Charity in Russia as a mechanism of interaction between society and the state (the beginning of the XVIII century-the end of the XIX century). St. Petersburg: Faces of Russia.
- [15] Sus. (1916, June 23). Departure of the Muslim Troop. In the Tatar language.
- [16] Tairov, N. I. (2011). Tatar bourgeoisie of Volga and Ural regions: social activities, charity and philanthropy (60th of XIX century-1917.). Kazan: Publishing House of Kazan State University of Culture and Arts.
- [17] Tairov, N. I., Tairov, I. N. (2014). Charity of Tatar entrepreneurs of Volga and Ural regions during the First World War. Tatar people and people of the Volga region during the First World War: a collection of materials / Endorsed by L. R. Gabdrafiqov. Kazan: Institute of History named after S. Mardzhani AC RT.
- [18] Tumanov, A. S. (2002). Autocracy and non-governmental organizations in Russia. 1905-1917 years. Tambov: Publishing house of Tambov State University.
- [19] Ulyanova, G. N. (2005). Charity in the Russian Empire, XIX-beginning of the XX century. Moscow: Nauka.
- [20] Vakyt. (1915, 24 December). From the Board of the Interim Muslim Committee. In the Tatar language.